The Bhasha Bharti Gopika font contains a mix of Gujarati and Hindustani characters to make it easy for people with knowledge in both scripts to read and write in Gujarati and Hindi languages. With this font users can make the use of both scripts without any issues. The font has around 3100 glyphs which are separated by diacritics to allow easy access. As well as the increased number of glyphs, the diacritics are also varied in speed, or type size, size, case, or other ways to make them easier to find. Many Gujarati and Hindi fonts use a large number of diacritics, and though they may look good, they are often very hard to find and use. The Bhasha bharti gopika font is an example of how many times the font designer had to go through the design process to ensure it will be easy to read, comfortable and pleasing. The designers wanted to ensure their work will serve the community of Gujarati people well. The Gopika typeface has been designed in such a way that it can be used for all purposes like reading books, signages and even on websites without causing any legibility problems. It uses good spacing and letter forms that make easier to read them while still maintaining its unique characteristics. The Bhasha Bharti Gopika font family has a total of 28 fonts. They include a number of different weights, ranging from thin to extra bold, and even a proportional typeface which is useful for websites. The font also contains 9 italic styles and 2 oblique styles.
